

A DREAM COME TRUE

As a child, I had always had a special relationship with my older brother and spent most of my happiest childhood memories with him ~~and~~. I even began to enjoy his company over my own parents. I really admired my older brother and wanted to be just like him. One day, I found my brother watching a documentary on chemistry and I found myself falling in love with chemistry. You would imagine that normal parents would be concerned that a 6 year old would be talking chemistry but my parents were overjoyed and immediately enrolled me in a school for gifted children.

~~A few years~~ ^{later} ~~A few~~ ^{years}, I did not let this opportunity go to waste and studied ^{hard} ~~my butt off~~ for all ~~my~~ exams and started saving money ~~from my part-time jobs~~ and finally managed to open my ~~own~~ chemistry lab.

Once upon a time in a faraway village, news spread about a great parade coming to town. Everyday, all everyone would talk about is the great parade. When the day finally came! An enormous crowd gathered, it was almost like the whole world had come to see! After everyone had settled down some trumpets began to sound and the bright caravans made their way through. There were unicorns and expert violinists, strong men and fairies dancing gracefully. The scene was magical, so amazing that some children cried to see it end.
Even though it was over the world be remembered for ages. Oh! and the parade touched so many hearts that many wrote stories about the fascinating magical performance!
